

Getty Images issues statement on CMA's interim report

February 19, 2026

NEW YORK, Feb. 19, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Getty Images (NYSE: GETY), a preeminent global visual content creator and marketplace, today issued the following statement on the UK Competition and Markets Authority's (CMA) provisional decision:

"We are pleased to see the CMA's progress with respect to the proposed merger between Getty Images and Shutterstock, particularly its provisional finding that the merger is not expected to result in competition issues in the global Stock content market.

We are disappointed and disagree with the CMA's provisional finding that the merger may result in a 'substantial lessening of competition' in the UK Editorial market. We do not believe the analysis or interim conclusions reflect the composition of the UK market, the level of regional competition within it or the alternatives available to customers.

We will continue to engage constructively with the CMA and expect to file our response to the CMA's interim report in line with the CMA's timeline. We also continue to work cooperatively with the U.S. Department of Justice as its review progresses."
