Internal Email to Company

Hi Team,

I have very big news to share with you. Today we announced that Shutterstock has signed an agreement to merge with Getty Images, combining the complementary strengths and offerings of two iconic brands to create a premier visual content company.

The combination of our companies will offer our customers a more diversified content library with greater depth and breadth, and an increased capacity to invest in growth, for example in innovative content, expanded event coverage, and customer-facing technologies and capabilities, such as search, 3D and generative AI. It also provides contributors greater opportunities to reach new customers around the world.

I know you're probably wondering where we go from here, so let me walk you through what you can expect in the coming months. First, it is important to note that we have signed an agreement, but there are additional steps remaining before we close the merger transaction. These steps include satisfying a number of closing conditions, such as shareholder approvals, regulatory approvals and other customary closing conditions. During this process, we will be discussing the specifics of the future combined organization with members of the Getty team. However, until the deal is closed, both companies will continue to operate independently and it will remain business as usual. Closing is targeted in the second half of 2025.

I also want to set the expectation that there will be a lot we cannot answer during this period, because discussions are ongoing and many decisions haven't been finalized. But what I will commit to you is that we will communicate openly and honestly and tell you what we can when we know it. And we will provide you the opportunity to ask questions, and get support and direction when needed via multiple forums. As a first step, we have developed a robust document with more information in the form of an FAQ. I encourage you to read through it. And tomorrow we will have an All Hands meeting where you will have the opportunity to ask more questions. We will also establish an area on the Lens where you can get the latest updates.

Here is what I ask of you - stay focused. We have goals to grow our business in 2025 and that remains unchanged. It is critical that we continue to deliver the experience our customers and contributors expect from Shutterstock. So let's channel our collective talent and enthusiasm to start the year strong and achieve great success in the year ahead!

Paul
